She has sat by her father's bedside every night after their separation over the last six weeks. She has stayed behind to wait in the long lines of fans outside the hospital and to stand with him in the waiting room as he was admitted to the clinic. She has stayed at home because we have been camping for over a week. Going home to school and work is not an option, it's not really an option since the time difference isn't helping at all. We are going out for a walk tonight, and I've packed for several hours in the car. I can't think of anything else to say. We had a nice time on Tuesday. The weather was perfect. Mr. M went with us, on foot, for most of our walk. We walked south along the lake toward the dam. We had a picnic at the dam and then walked to the forest preserve and back to the house. We had coffee out on the patio before heading to the car. I couldn't figure out why I was so

My son had it, and you chose to take him away. You and I both know that there is no "I" in "Team Dad." Hang onto your "pity vote" Dad. You'll need it to cover the $5,928 you're going to have to spend on a "Non-family friendly" hot dog! I don't need any "Team Dad" votes from you. This is some bullcrap right here. I chose to have my son because he is my son. I chose to adopt him because I chose to have him. I have a right to my son. This is some hogwash right here. Sure, I have a right to my son. BUT, I have a right to raise him and educate him. That is my right. You can't give him away as a gift. That is stealing. This is some bullcrap right here. I chose to have my son because he is my son. I chose to adopt him because I chose to have
